IMMIGRATION BILL BEFORE THE HOUSE

Debate On the Johnson Immigration Bill On—Would Limit Quotas to Two Per Cent Based On the Census of 1890

BITTER FIGHT IS NOW ON

More Bitter Than Any Since Tax Bill—Opposition to Measure Expressed Not Only In This, But Through Representatives By Foreign Countries

Washington, April 5. — (United Press).—Faced by a fight more bitter than any since the tax bill, the House today opened debate on the Johnson bill, which would limit quotas to two percent based on the census of 1890.

Vigorous opposition to the bill has been expressed not only by various elements in this country, but through representations to the state department by foreign countries.

Secretary of State Hughes strongly urged the immigration committee, which drafted the bill, to lighten many of its restrictive provisions, but in a sharply worded report the committee laid the bill before the House without material changes in the provisions against which Hughes had protested.

The Johnson measure abrogates the "gentleman's agreement" with Japan and expressly excludes all Japanese immigrants. The change to a quota based on 1890 almost cuts off immigration from southern and southeastern Europe. Italy for example, is reduced from a quota of 42,057 to one of 8,224. Both countries have laid strenuous protests before the State department.

On the other hand the 1890 quota basis greatly increases the proportion of immigrants allowed to enter from Germany, Great Britain, Ireland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden The committee supported this provision of racial elements in this country.

Briefly, the new bill

1—Preserves the basic immigration law of 1917 with the principle of numerical "quota" limitation inaugurated in the act of 1921.

2—Changes the quota basis from 1910 to 1890 and reduces the percentage from three to two percent.

4—Carries numerous administrative features to lessen hardships on individual immigrants.

5—Excludes all persons ineligible to become citizens.

Grace of God Abundant In The Revival

The revival conducted by the Methodist Episcopal and Presbyterian congregations of California during the last three weeks with the Rev James B. Ely in charge, will be brought to a close tomorrow. The evangelistic services have been among the most successful in the history of the little town of California; the grace of God has been abundant in the revival, is the verdict.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, Evangelist Ely will deliver an address at a man's mass meeting in the Methodist church, upon the subject, "Stung" This is the fourth of the men's rallies, and many are expected to attend from towns contiguous to the Normal town The High School orchestra of the town will furnish the music for the occasion.

On Sunday evening at 7:30 in the Presbyterian church, the two congregations will unite in a general service, which will mark the close of the revival.

Following the regular service on Thursday evening members of the various organizations in the two churches, joined by their friends and children of the Sunday schools, numbering nearly 600 paraded over the principal streets. The marchers carried American flags and red fire, and sang to march time such stirring numbers as "Onward Christian Soldiers" and the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

It was a striking demonstration with delegations from Coal Center, Nemacolin, Phillipsburg, Fredericktown, Vestaburg, Millsboro and other points. The line of march ended at the Methodist church, where a street rally service was addressed by the evangelist At the close of this service the Men's Brotherhood furnished refreshments to over 300 of the marchers.

The large American flag carried at the head of the procession was furnished by R. G. Dean, principal of the California schools, who marched at the head of a delegaton of boys and girls from the schools

THE BANDIT GETS MONEY

Pramer Is Walking From Van-Voorhis, Where He Sought Work — Negro Approached Him In Wooded Section And Struck Him Blow On Head

John Pramer, 60 years old, Slavish coal miner, was attacked and brutally beaten by a colored man on the Monongahela-Van Voorhis road, about one mile from Van Voorhis, yesterday morning at 5 o'clock.

Pramer was walking from Van-Voorhis, where he had been seeking employment, and was carrying a suitcase, containing his clothes, and other belongings. He had traversed the highway some distance from the little mining village, when he noticed a man coming down the road behind him.

As Pramer was passing through a wooded section along the highway, the negro approached him and with a stone struck Palmer a heavy blow on the head and beat him about the body. Pramer fell to the ground, and his assailant took $45 from his pocket and an additional sum of money from his pocketbook. The footpad also took the suit-case, which contained the clothes and all the man's personal effects.

Pramer, after crying for help, lapsed into an unconscious state, and was not found until two hours later, when a coal miner, walking to work at Van Voorhis, discovered him lying in the road and rendered first aid.

The police of the city of Washington were notified, and the man was removed to the county seat. Pramer was given medical aid, three stitches being required to close the wound in the man's head while bruises about the body also required attention.

Pramer told Chief of Police S. S. Burnworth of Monongahela of the attack, stating that he had walked from Washington, from which place he left several days ago in search of employment. Yesterday, he went to Van Voorhis, hoping to secure work at the mine there, but was refused, and later, spending the night in the open, began to walk to Monongahela, when he was attacked by the negro.

Only a meagre description of his assailant could be given by Pramer. Relieved of his money and clothes, Pramer is unable to continue his search for work, and will be given lodging at the police station in Monongahela, while an investigation is being made. In the meantime, efforts are being made to secure the luckless man employment.

Angie Cocchiora, aged five years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cocchiara, of Morgan avenue, Monessen, was probably fatally injured yesterday morning about 10 o'clock when struck by a large delivery truck, at the intersection of Ninth street and Morgan avenue that city.

The child was playing in the street near her home and stepped from behind an auto parked in the street directly in the path of a delivery truck of the Fifth Avenue Grocery firm. The wheels did not pass over the little body, but the child was thrown with such force that her skull was fractured.

The driver immediately stopped the truck and securing a nearby auto hurried with the injured child to Memorial hospital. He is still in an unconscious condition and is probably fatally injured.

A Probation Officer Sues County To Recover Auto Upkeep

Frank H Mitchell, probation officer of the court, has filed a suit against the county of Washington, in which he seeks to recover $84.02. This sum is alleged due for care and maintenance and depreciation of a car used by him in his official capacity as an officer of the court. The bill, it appears, though approved by Judge James I. Brownson, has not been approved by the county commissioners.

Originally the bill was approved by Messrs. Walker and Barnes, county commissioners, and later Commissioner Johnson approved it after he cut off two items, one for $20 and one for $8.10. Subsequent to that the other approval

Mr. Mitchell avers that under an oral agreement with the commissioners, made in 1917, he having furnished his own car for use in his work as an officer, he was allowed the upkeep and repair of the car by the county, and $20 for depreciation in value It appears that the sum included in his bill for depreciation and another small item were disappeared.

CHARLEROI POLICE ARE ASKED TO AID IN FINDING WOMAN

Thomas Foster, a resident of Donora, appealed to the Charleroi police this morning to help him locate his wife Sylvia alias Louise Foster, together with their 15-months-old baby, whom he has reasons to believe are in this locality.

Mrs Foster, who before her marriage two years ago, was Miss Louise Marker of Monongahela City, left her home in Donora Wednesday morning, taking with her her baby, personal belongings and a large sum of money. The last seen of the woman was at Black Diamond, when she changed cars for Charleroi. Mr. Foster is of the opinion the lady is in Charleroi, because of a number of friends she has here

When she left home she was attired in a grey hat, blue suit, and tan shoes and stockings. The baby wore a white teddy bear suit.

Mr. Foster, who is employed at the LeMoyne Steel Company at New Eagle, can give no reason for his wife's absence as there has never been any misunderstanding between them.

BIG TRANSFORMER TO THE SUB-STATION

Fifth street was the scene of an unusual occurrence this morning at 6:30 o'clock, when the employes of the West Penn Power company, supervised by O. J Schaeffer, transported a transformer weighing 35 tons up the hill to the partially erected million dollar sub-station. All day yesterday about twelve workmen devoted their time to unloading this heavy bulk from the freight car in McKean avenue onto an especially built truck, constructed for the purpose. Heavy board planks were placed on the street to protect possible weak places. This morning the truck made its way up the hill without any mishap, preceded by five trucks bearing materials, while two trucks behind served to push. Still another truck brought up the rear with additional material.

This was the first time that this company has taken any part of its heavy machinery up the hill by way of Fifth street. Formerly the material has been brought into Charleroi as usual on the freight train and transported to Warner by way of division of a mine truck and from there taken up Rodgers hill to the sub-station.

"SONG OF LOVE" AT MAJESTIC

In the "Song of Love," Norma Talmadge scores the greatest hit of her career, lustrous as it is. In this First National picture the star reveals new and unexpected facts of the marvelous talent that is hers, beguiling and bewitching the spectator with the power of her pantomime

As an Arabian dancer, Miss Talmadge has a particularly alluring role and one that is quite a departure from her recent portraitures of silk-clad dames of other periods. She gives to the part a tempestuous characterization and appeal that stamp her as the most versatile of film heroines.

"The Song of Love" was adapted from the novel, "Dust of Desire," which has won considerable renown for its author, Margaret Peterson. The picture was directed jointly by Chester Franklin and Frances Marion and the star's supporting cast includes such notables as Joseph Schildkraut, Arthur Edmund Carewe, Laurence Wheat, Maude Wayne, Earl Schenck, Hector V. Sarno, Albert Prisco, Mario Carillo and James Cooley.

The settings are exceptionally beautiful. One is enthralled by the majestic splendor of the boundless desert and the exotic architecture of the cities and towns in which the action takes place. Pictorially, as well as in every other phase, the production is one of the most artistic and flawless that we have ever seen.

76 KILLED ON STATE ROADS

Harrisburg, April 5.—Seventy-six persons were killed and 586 injured on State highways during the last six months.

The majority of accidents continue to occur on dry, and straight road sections, rather than on slippery curves—reports received by the State Highway department show. This is true not only of the month of March, but of the period beginning October 1, last, when the Highway department began the compilation of accident data.

Since October 1, 1923, 698 accidents were reported to the Department. Of this total 476 occurred on dry roads, 185 on roads that were wet and 37 on icy roads. Three hundred and forty-eight accidents occurred on straight road sections, 145 on light curves, 115 on sharp curves, 7 at undergrade crossings, 51 at Highway bridges, 97 at road crossings, 29 at railroad crossings and 31 at Highway culverts. On light grades there were 217 accidents; on heavy grades, 59.

In the 698 accidents, 902 motor vehicles were involved, 250 of them being stolen models, in 66 cases or nine percent of the total, the drivers were intoxicated.

Of the 76 persons killed, 19 were pedestrians.

Of the pedestrians killed and injured, 23 were walking in the same direction as the car.

In October there were 224 accidents, November, 149; December, 92; January, 104; February, 65; and March, 63. Of these accidents 144 occurred on Sunday, 119 on Saturday, 80 on Friday, 103 on Thursday, 102 on Wednesday, 69 on Tuesday and 81 on Monday. In October 18 persons were killed; November, 11; December, 12; January, 7; February, 6; March, 3.

Of the 66 accidents in March, 48 were on dry road sections.

In the accidents reported for the last six months, 2,206 persons occupied the motor vehicles involved. Fifty-seven of these persons were killed, 559 were injured and 1,590 were not injured.

Wet Shoes Should Be Kept Away From Heat

It seems to be a natural inclination with the average person when his shoes are wet to place them on a radiator or near the kitchen stove to dry, says an expert on leather, writing in the Shoe Conserver. This is exactly the wrong thing to do. Leather when it is wet is a great deal like wood. Unless the drying process is allowed to take its own natural slow course, it will warp, stiffen and bulge.

With the shoe, of course, these effects are as disastrous as they would be with a piece of furniture or anything where a series of component parts come in contact with each other as they do in a shoe.

The effects of the wetting on the sole may not be the same as on the upper, and the effects of the wetting on the fore part of the sole may not be the same as on the shank, with the result that when they have finally warped and settled, they have probably torn away from each other; to say the least, the shoe would be very uncomfortable.

A shoe that has become water-soaked in any way should be immediately placed on a tree, or if the trees are not available stuffed with paper or cloths and left to dry in a cool, dry place. In this way the leather will be revitalized by the drying atmosphere and, even though the wetting will have its injurious effects, they will be minimized.

Biggest 10-Cent Store Is Run by Uncle Sam

It is not generally known that Uncle Sam runs the biggest 10-cent store in the world. Printed copies of patents are sold all over this country at 10 cents each to the number of 200,000 a month, says the Kansas City Times. It costs six cents each to print these patents, which is one of the biggest jobs done by the government printing office, the public printer testifies.

He says 50 linotype machines are kept busy eight hours a day. The printing for the patent office costs around $1,000,000 a year, which comes back into the treasury with at least $200,000 profit.

In addition to the 200,000 copies of patents distributed every month 2,000,000 copies are sent to libraries all over this country and to foreign countries in exchange. There are in the patent office, subject to sale, 50,000,000 copies of patents, which makes this the most valuable store in the city of Washington. These have a cost value to the government of $3,000,000 and a sale value of $5,000,000.

Following Orders

A young artist was given permission by the captain of a large ship to get on a staging, slung over the side, for the purpose of getting a better view of another vessel which he wanted to paint.

It was not long after that the captain got into the ship's boat, and shouted up to the deck, "Let go the painter!"—the painter being a rope by which the boat is made fast to the ship.

The order not being obeyed promptly, he shouted again, "Let go the painter."

Instantly a voice replied, "He's gone, sir; brushes, paint and all!"

Merely Incidental

Doctor Rubetinker was a qualified M. D., but, settling in a cattle country and finding the demand strong, he had added veterinary work to his other practice.

"Nothing serious," announced the doctor, after examining a valuable bull which he had been summoned posthaste to treat. "Give him one of these powders in a quart of bran mash three times a day."

The rancher heaved a sigh of relief. "Wait," he said, as the M. D. V. S. was about to leave. "I reckon, as long as you're here, you might as well have a look at the old woman. She's been ailin' for a month or two."

He Marvelled at It

As the scientists say, it is not easy to tell what is going to impress a stranger when he visits other lands. An Abyssinian prince was delighted with our ice cream cones. An American financier who made a trip to Montreal was asked what impressed him most. He tried to give a faithful answer to this question, thought it over carefully, and then replied: "The fact that Canadian money was accepted without question everywhere I went."

Plan Atlantic Seadromes.

French air experts have worked out plans for the building of floating airplane stations, or seadromes, to dot the Atlantic as jumping-off places and for refueling stations on transatlantic airplane routes. It is proposed to have eight of these between the United States and France, about 400 miles apart. A special system of deep-sea anchorage will make the seadromes feasible, it is said. They will be large enough to allow a plane to alight and take off.

The League is campaigning to win a majority vote in the State Legislature in the proposal to the end that assessments be made fairer and that exorbitant costs of collection, due to the extravagant fee system prevailing outside of Philadelphia, be reduced to a more reasonable basis.

NEW SPORT FOR ATLANTIC CITY

Everybody wondered why City officials put down the glassy smooth runways along the great Atlantic City Boardwalk until the athletic maids discovered they make the finest sort of roller skating ground. Since that time, the runways have been extended for miles and the fashionables of exclusive Chelsea are taking to boardwalk roller skating with enthusiasm. The picture shows Miss Irene Schuyler, of New York, enjoying the new sport.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS.

Sheep Manure is indispensable for the vegetable garden. Wizard brand by its strong forcing action causes quick early growth and a continual production of crisp tender vegetables. If a vegetable garden is your hobby, you will experience increased delight and greater satisfaction from the wonderful results Wizard Brand will bring. For growing luscious fruits, berries and melons it is unsurpassed.

Wizard Brand has long been used by the practical vegetable grower. It is especially recommended for all small vegetables, radishes, lettuce, onions, celery, cabbage, etc. It keeps intensively cultivated soils in proper condition and makes possible the production of two or three crops from the same soil each season. There is no filler or waste in Wizard Sheep Manure and its many advantages over crude manure for truck and garden crops are plain.

Applications can be made broadcast after plowing and harrowed into the soil at the rate of 1000 to 1500 pounds per acre. If used in the drill at planting time use 700 to 1000 pounds per acre. Side application later in the season will be found very profitable.

A NEW TAX BILL— AND TO BE ADOPTED

Washington, April 5—(United Press)—A new tax bill—the one that will finally become a law—will be written next week on the floor of the Senate. The Senate finance committee planned to finish late tonight its three weeks work on the measure passed by the House.

The new bill, as finally passed, probably will provide for a forty per cent maximum surtax instead of the forty-four percent of the House bill.

A tentative agreement for this revision has been reached between Progressives and Democrats, who can control the Senate.

The committee bill embodies the Mellon rates but even the most optimistic Republican members of the committee have no hope that these will survive the Senate in any essential detail.

ONE LAWYER WHO IS APPRECIATED

New York, April 5—(United Press)—While relatives of Mrs. Essie Gross were holding a Jewish religious service in a vacant room next to the court to pray for her acquittal of charges of murdering her husband, Irving, a supreme court jury brought back a verdict of "not guilty."

The defense of Mrs. Gross was that her husband had been shot during a struggle for a revolver with which he had threatened her in her apartment on December 11.

STEAMER AND SHIP ARE ABANDONED

Buenos Aires, April 5. — (United Press).—The 6,000 ton Italian steamer Monte Pasubio and the ship Westbury have been abandoned off Quequen as result of Wednesday's freak storm, which stranded the vessels by blowing the waters of the River Platte out to sea, it was reported today.

Both vessels probably will be total losses.

The Argentine cargo boat America, which also was stranded, has been floated. One man was washed overboard in the storm, the captain reported.

After a very delightful evening a delicious luncheon was served by the hostess.

The Pollyanna class of Christ Lutheran church met in its regular semi-monthly meeting Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Robert Coulter, Jr., of Washington avenue and Second street. There was a short business session and the greater part of the evening was spent in sewing and social converse. A dainty luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by her sister-in-law, Mr. Albert Bertsche, Jr.

UNABLE TO KEEP HIS CHILDREN, OFFERS TO GIVE THEM AWAY

Homestead, Pa., April 5—(United Press)—Although Andrew Kartez offered to give his three small children away because his meagre part time wages as a laborer in a mill would not keep them in comfort, police here today are seeking a happier solution of the problem in order to keep the little family together.

Kartez placed an advertisement in a paper here, reading "Three fine children to be had for the asking by any person who will promise to provide for them."

Authorities immediately started to investigate the family and learned since the death of Kartez's wife, the father has been caring for Jennie, 11, Andrew, 7, and Mary 4.

An effort is being made to obtain a steady job for Kartez to make the breaking up of his home unnecessary.

VARSITY CREW WILL TRY TO REPEAT

London, April 5—(United Press)—Stroked by W. P. Mellen, the twenty-one year-old American oarsman, the Oxford varsity crew will attempt to repeat on the Thames river today the spectacular victory it scored last year over Cambridge in England's most treasured sport classic.

Because it has four veterans from last year's champion crew, and because it has a weight advantage of eight pounds to a man, the Oxford crew was a four to one favorite in the betting this morning to repeat last year's victory and win the seventy-seventh race staged between the two universities.

England's royalty and her humblest, running into thousands upon thousands, lined both sides of the four and a quarter mile course from the Putney bridge to the Mortlake finish line. The winding course of the river was banked with the massed dark blue colors of Oxford and the light blue of Cambridge.

The generalship and skill of the 150 pound American stroke in the Oxford shell was regarded by the critics as a tremendous advantage as Mellen's work in the race last year caused him to be ranked as the greatest stroke oar seen on the Thames since the war.

The usual ceremonies were on the program. The two captains tossed coins for their choice of the course, and the Cambridge crew being the challengers, were the first to take the water.

The race was scheduled to start at 2 p. m.

Sunshine greeted the thousands who arose early in order to get a choice place on the banks of the river for a glimpse of the race. A chill wind swept across the course from the northeast and made heavy garments none too warm.

It was feared yesterday that bad weather might reduce the crowd, but the same interest in the race was registered by the presence of thousands along the river banks shortly after sunrise.

At noon it was announced that tide conditions might make it impossible to start the race as early as had been expected.

FIVE CONVICTS ARE INDICTED

Pittsburgh, April 5.—Five convicts indicted for murder in connection with the killing of two guards during the riot in Western penitentiary in February are scheduled to go on trial in the week beginning Monday, according to District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner.

Counsel for but one of the five has been appointed by the court, the others having refused to sign petitions asking that attorneys be assigned to defend them. Edward G. Coll will defend Jack Kerns.

The men were indicted for killing Deputy Warden John A. Pieper and Guard Sergeant John T. Coax. The defendants besides Kerns, are Salvatore Battaglia, alias "Battle Axe;" Paul Olakoskey, Michael Norton, alias Burke; and James Vandis.

ATTORNEY, IRE UP, WANTS TO FIGHT

Milan, Italy, April 5—(United Press)—Dr. Savistano Rondi, a lawyer born in Sicily, has challenged Maurice Macterlinck to a duel because of alleged uncomplimentary remarks made by the Belgian writer about Rondi's native island.

Maeterlinck's remarks were published in the Belgian Review, following a trip the poet made through Sicily, and were described as anything but complimentary to the people of the island.

"I have read with indignation your ignoble article about your trip through Sicily," Rondi wrote the poet. "As a citizen of the great and highly civilized and glorious city of Palerme, I inform you that you may consider yourself slapped in the face.

TO BE CONGRATULATED.

In its acquisition of a new fire truck, the North Charleroi General Fire department is to be congratulated. Now, it is up to the citizenry of our sister borough, to stand shoulder to shoulder with the firemen in their efforts to afford better protection to the homes and business places of the Lock.

North Charleroi has grown by leaps and bounds in the past ten years, and has not begun to reach the acme of its possible achievements. The day when Lock's Hill was in its virgin state, has passed, and where was once bare, and in the winter time bleak, hillsides, has passed into oblivion, to be succeeded in the forward march of civic progress by many handsome and commodious residences; numerous improved, [illegible] comfortable homes.

Of course, there is more improvement work to be done in the borough than has been accomplished; this statement goes without saying; but things necessary and needful will come, and that the residents of the town have confidence in the future, is attested by the decided rise in property values in the past few years.

In line, then, and as a spoke in the wheel of civic progress, the North Charleroi General Fire department saw the need and necessity for more and better equipment, hence the purchase of the truck. It is now the metal and measure of the people of the Lock to lend their substantial appreciation to the firemen in future lines of endeavor, all contributing to borough weal.

Ambassador Kellogg meant well when he defended the American people in his speech before the London Press Club, but the accounts indicate that he did it rather awkwardly, and it will be widely questioned whether he should have done it at all. It seems he assured England that graft in the United States is really not widespread, that crooks in the Cabinet are even rare, that it is not true that bootleggers call at every back doorstep, and that the great majority of us are virtuously enduring our thirst. Our Ambassadors to other countries might do well to avoid contributing to the gaiety of nations in a similar fashion.

Bishop Manning is not only worried by the expressed views of "modernist" clergymen in his diocese but has on his hands the problem of Rev. Dr. Guthrie of St. Mark's church, New York, who may be more or less accurately described as a devotee of pagan forms of worwship. Despite the Bishop's disapproval, Dr. Guthrie insists on introducing bare-foot dancing girls into the religious ceremonies of his church, to the great entertainment of flocking spectators.

Will Hays says Harry F. Sinclair did not give the Republican National Committee 75,000 shares of Teapot Dome, but merely contributed $75,000 to cover a deficit. We may rest assured, however, that Sinclair counted on getting the worth of his money just as he did when he paid Archie Roosevelt a salary of $15,000 in spite of his conviction—which he openly declared the other day—that the young man was a "disappointment" and "never would and never could make good."

Elinor Glyn, the British novelist whose fiction has been rendered somewhat less startling by rivals ready to "let loose" even more extensively, is now the head or the soul of an American corporation styled "Elinor Glyn, Limited." In view of the large liberty she has claimed and exercised, "unlimited" would seem to be rather more appropriately descriptive.

According to Leonard Wood, Jr., the oil interests offered to nominate his father in 1920 if he would allow them to name the Secretary of the Interior and his father repudiated the proposition. Whether Fall was precisely the Secretary of the Interior the oil interests wanted, he no doubt served the purpose satisfactorily enough when he leased the oil lands to Doheny and Sinclair.

"As my American friends say, it is real good of you"—Premier Ramsey MacDonald. Did he mean that we would say "really good"—as obviously we should—or would he recommend the English "jolly good"?

The House may not have been any too sure that the people back home would laugh when Mr. Longworth jestingly suggested that on roll call the members answer "guilty" or "not guilty."

According to the heading of an Omaha dispatch "Bryan hints Democrats can draft him if the party can not find any one else." After all these years Barkis is still willin.'

The split between the Capulets and the Montagues was a small affair compared with what is likely to follow the broadside fired into the house of Roosevelt by Harry F. Sinclair.

Ninety-nine indictments have promptly followed the recent "reign of terror" in Herrin Ill., but rates of convictions, if any, will as usual be long delayed.

The Republican party was born in a school house at Ripon, Wis., on March 20, 1854, and its 70th anniversary was appropriately celebrated there the other day.

Cuba, which is somewhat restive under our leading strings, finds opportunity for self-expression just now in the form of cartoons in the Havana papers depicting Uncle Sam as plastered with mud.

A rather flippant contribution to the discussion of the proper classifications of morons is the suggestion that a moron is a person who refuses to accept your views.

British Propose Tinted Highways.

In England the suggestion has been made that the public highways be colored by means of some cheap chemical spray, which would make them less tiring to the eyes of the motor drivers.

Red King Rules Persia.

Worms that Dance on Waves Are Puzzle to Science

Millions of tiny worms that "dance" in the moonlight on the surface of the sea during the egg-hatching season, and transform the waves into the appearance of vermicelli soup, have been observed off Samoa, the Antilles, and the coast of France. They appear at the first and last quarters of the moon and in the months of May, September, October, and November only. They are so small that it is estimated that more than 1,000,000 occupy the space within the radius of a small lantern.

Police Learn Eyelid Talking to Balk the Criminal

Detectives in Canada are being taught a code by means of which they can communicate with one another by dropping, raising or other movements of the eyes, and also how to "talk" secretly by means of [illegible] fingering of a mustache and twiddling fingers behind the back. This is being done so that they can transfer their thoughts when in the presence of criminals or prisoners. It is declared that communication with the eyelids can be as rapid as the ordinary man typewrites.

There are now 145,000 radio sets on the farms throughout the country, which receive crop reports from 150 government wireless stations, according to recent estimates.

Alarm Clock Feeds Poultry and Turns on Lights

Poultry can be supplied with grain automatically at any desired time from a feeder operated by an alarm clock. The apparatus scatters the material in proper amounts over a 20-foot space, insuring the fowls sufficient exercise in gathering it. A switch attachment can also be made to turn electric lights on and off without interfering with the feeding mechanism. The device can be hung to the ceiling of a coop or placed over a yard, and is designed to do away with much of the care required from attendants. It is claimed that it can be filled and set for work in a few minutes.

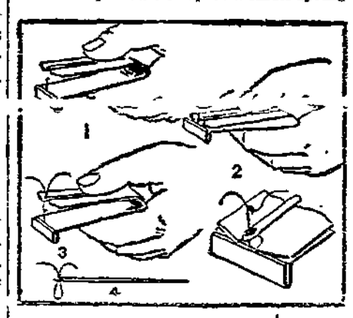
Wire Hook to Thread Needle Saves Time, Aids Eyes

To save time in threading a needle, a device has been patented in Europe recently that performs the operation quickly, even in poor light. A slight pressure of the finger pushes a hooked wire through the eye of a needle that has first been placed on top of a small spring.



Then the strand is put on the hook, which can be done by an unsteady hand, and as the grip is released the wire passes out of the needle eye, carrying the thread with it through the hole.

Removing Water from Mortar

When mixing concrete it often occurs that too much water is added, making the mixture too thin to work properly. Of course, more sand and cement can be added, but this is not always desirable, as it increases the quantity of concrete, and this may not be necessary. A good method of removing the excess of water is to place a few common bricks in the mixture for a few minutes, and it will be found that the bricks absorb so much of the water that the mixture soon becomes workable. A common brick, when thoroughly dry, will absorb about a pint of water.

Cure for Grabbing Clutch

To overcome the grabbing tendency of a clutch on a light car, a driver installed an additional pedal plate, attached to the regular pedal by means of four bolts and coil springs, the bolts fitting loosely in holes drilled for them and the springs keeping the plates separated. The bolts used are ¼ in. in diameter and 2½ in. long. They are slipped through holes drilled in the lower plate and reamed out so that the bolts can slip in and out easily when the pedal is under pressure. The auxiliary plate, being the same shape and size as the regular plate, is drilled and tapped to receive the screw ends of the bolts. Before assembling, 2-in. open coil springs, made of No. 10 brass wire, are placed over the bolts, which are then screwed into the threaded holes in the auxiliary plate until they project just a trifle; the ends are then hammered over to keep the bolt from unscrewing. Pressure applied on the pedal causes the clutch to take hold gradually, and all grabbing is eliminated.

Not much larger than a watch, a phonograph which can be slipped into the pocket and has space for ten double disk records has been invented by a Hungarian. The sound produced by the machine is said to be so amplified when it is placed on a tumbler that the tiny instrument can be used to provide music for dancing.

THE OFFICE CAT

It's leap year and my throbbing heart is throbbing for the best:

I'd like to have some little girl to lean against my vest.

I do not pen these lines in fun, in jollity, or jest;

I offer me, myself—O, Fate, come put me to the test!

I realize there ain't much chance for ugly men like me,

I'd like to tell 'em one and all I'll pay the wedding fee;

Come, girls, don't hesitate and miss this opportunity.

The telephone companies claim that spooning by wire costs them $12,000 a year. But it does not say what it costs the chappies who spoon.

You can't blame the girl, however, if she hears her proud mamma telling what a whiz she would be in the movies.

Correct this sentence: "Yes, it's wonderful," said the woman, "but I'd rather have our own little five-room bungalow."

Fashion note: Shorter skirts are on the way. We suppose that means the high way.

Mr. Mayfee's wife asked him to keep track of the number of times that he swore in a round of golf. After eighteen holes he came in and emptied a handful of stones out of each pocket, saying, "Here are the damns, the rest are coming in the truck, you count them."

The perpetual changes in the weather this winter lead us to the conclusion that the women are trying to run that, too.

Have you ever stopped to think that it is about one man in a million who gets the million?

The new insurance regulation giving a lower rate on burglary protection to householders owning watchdogs makes life dark for persons who live in apartment houses where dogs and children are prohibited. The fact probably is that a light left burning in the front room of an apartment will scare away more burglars than a half dozen watchdogs, but as to the insurance companies refunding the cost of the increased light bill—well, try to get it.

Bicycles Great Peril to Pedestrians in Denmark

Denmark is a flat country, and therefore an incentive to bicycling. As soon as children are out of swaddling clothes in Denmark they are lashed to the handlebars of their parents' bicycles, or strapped in rumble seats, and taken on long trips. Thus bicycling becomes second nature to the Danes.

Danish cities encourage the use of bicycles by constructing special bicycle paths along the roadside so that the bicyclists may not be annoyed by traffic. This gives the bicyclists a false sense of security, so that the motorist in Copenhagen and other Danish towns is constantly being confronted by a serene bicyclist who sails with blissful recklessness directly into the motorcar's path.

The Danes are confirmed wabblers while bicycling, due to their habit of guiding the bicycles with only one hand, the other being used to lead dogs, hold large bundles, convey open umbrellas, valises or other impedimenta, or to restrain the tendency of skirts to rise to the riders' waists. The inventor who evolves a contrivance for holding down the skirts of lady bicyclists should reap a fortune in Copenhagen alone.

Everybody in Copenhagen rides to work on a bicycle every morning, so that the person who ventures on the streets afoot early in the morning or late in the afternoon is constantly in peril of being knocked down and having his features enmeshed in a sprocket wheel or tangled in a welter of wire spokes.—K. George Meredith Ordered All Manuscripts Burned

George Meredith placed no value whatsoever on the manuscripts of his novels. Once when he said so to Miss Nichol she answered teasingly that it was mock modesty on his part to say such a thing.

To this Meredith merely gave her an instruction: to make a bonfire of manuscripts at the end of the garden! "And he was set on it, too," she told us.

"But," she pleaded, "can't I have [illegible]"

"Yes," he answered carelessly, "take whichever you like."

She selected several of the precious documents—single sheets on which he had written out his short poems. Miss Nichol led Mr. Brooks and me down into the vegetable garden, and there, a black little heap of ashes, lay all that remained of manuscripts worth who knows how much!—From "Forty Years in My Boookshop," by Walter S. MENIHAN ARCH-AID SHOES

Do the words "MENIHAN ARCH-AID" mean anything--Yet--in your Wardrobe?

IT took the women of America just so long to discover that Baking Powder was good for cooking, and that Face Powder was good for complexions—and by the same laws of logic it may take your home "just so long" to discover and know this famous shoe.

BUT once the introduction is complete—once a pair of ARCH-AIDS are allotted a place in your shoe racks—the spell will be broken, and so will the tie that binds you to tired, aching foot muscles and tired, aching style notes. MENIHAN ARCH-AID Shoes for Easter are making their first appearance on our shelves and in our windows. And this afternoon if you will come in, we promise a revelation in relief if you have suffered from pain—and a new sensation in style if you have suffered from sameness.

Why?

Why are we asking for higher rates at a time when everyone is hoping and looking for lower prices generally?

When we adopted our present rates we had some 600,000 telephones in Pennsylvania. Most of the plant for their operation was installed at prices averaging those of 1912 and 1913 for labor and materials, and these rates were calculated to allow a fair return on that investment.

Since May, 1920, we have put in half a million telephones (for a net gain of 200,000), and all of them, including the additional new plant required for their operation, at the new cost levels.

Telephone plant wears out. All replacements, too, have been made at these higher prices.

In the next five years we must put in 925,000 new telephones, gross, to meet the demands of the people of Pennsylvania for service.

Here is the point!

Telephone rates made in 1920, when the investment was $137 per telephone in service, do not provide an adequate return today, when the investment is $177 per telephone in service, and constantly increasing.

A reasonable increase in telephone rates is necessary in order to attract the tremendous amounts of new capital now required, not only to meet the demands for expansion, but also to keep up the existing service.

CANADA'S OLYMPIC PROSPECT BREAKS DOMINION RECORD

I. E. Francis, of Toronto University, about to clear the bar. In a recent intercollegiate pole vault meet, he broke the Canadian record at 12 feet, 2 inches, establishing a new mark among Dominion Universities. He only graduated from High School a year ago. He is Canada's most likely prospect for the Olympic games, and a man that Americans will have to watch.

Deafness of Snakes.

Snakes have no external ears, and it is thought that they hear little or nothing. Whether they feel sound impulses through their bodies or bones is something that is not known.

Compensation.

Mrs. Hoyle—"It's too bad that we are kept at home from the opera by the storm." Mrs. Doyle—"Well, it will give us something to talk about, when we do go."

An Oversight.

Go-gettery is quite in vogue and is highly successful in so many cases where the citizen has failed to mine the approaches to his money and chattels.

And Maybe Better.

Pueblo Indians Carry Fetish When Hunting

The favorite hunt-fetish among the Pueblo Indians was the mountain lion or cougar, which they deemed the king of animals. Every Indian carried a fetish when he hunted, and derived his power from it by putting its mouth to his own and drawing in his breath—"drinking the breath" of the image—and praying to it, or rather the animal spirit it represented, to help him.

The ceremony was indispensable at the beginning of a hunt. Then before following the trail the Indian imitated the roar of his patron beast, to terrify and bewilder the game. He firmly believed that without these superstitious ceremonials he would stand no chance at all in the hunt, but with them he was sure to succeed. The animals which were successful hunters themselves were the objects of reverence, and the Indian was careful to invoke their aid, that his own pursuit might be as fortunate as theirs.

The hunter, when he struck a trail, took a forked twig and placed it in front of a footprint, with the fork opening backward. This was to trip the fleeing game.—Detroit News.

Honduras Turkeys More Gaudy Than Our Peacock

Brilliant iridescent plumage distinguishes the Honduras turkey, it being black tipped with brassy green and fringed with greenish copper. The head is bright blue and yellow, and the rump region is steel-blue, with brilliant eyes of green-blue margined with copper marking the ends of the grayish tail feathers. It is said to be much more gaudy than the peacock, and though somewhat smaller than our Eastern wild turkey its meat is claimed to be much better.

Experiments at zoological gardens indicate that this fancy bird will breed with the less colorful of our domestic species. It is the only species of turkey, however, which is native to tropical lowlands. The Mexican turkey, from which our domestic turkey is believed to have originated, lives on the high tablelands. It has the characteristic white-tipped tail feathers of the domestic bird. Wild turkeys in Arizona and New Mexico show this feature, while turkeys of the Rio Grande valley of southern Texas are partly like the Mexican birds and partly like the Eastern wild turkey.

Had No Diver's Suit

What is said to be a record claim for damage to a watch, which had been sold with a guarantee against mechanical imperfection, was reported by a New York jewelry retailer. The watch was of the wrist variety, and had been a birthday gift from the mother of the young woman who made the claim. She brought it back to the retailer a couple of months after the purchase and complained that it would not run. On the strength of the guarantee she demanded a new watch. The retailer quickly ascertained that her charge was true, but when he examined the watch more closely he found the works almost entirely covered with rust. The young woman was at first unwilling to admit that the watch had been badly treated in any way, but finally admitted that she had worn it while taking a bath. Under the circumstances the jeweler could not see where the watch was at fault, but he offered to replace the works at factory cost. This offer, however, did not make much of a hit with the claimant.

Origin of the Collar

In the patent office at Washington there is a woman's department, with the specifications of the patents arranged in chronological order. The first on the list is a patent taken out in 1809 by Mrs. Mary Kieser for a process of weaving straw with silk. One woman inventor, Hannah Lord Montague, is honored by a public memorial in Troy, N. Y., where she was born. As Mrs. Montague was doing the family washing on a hot summer day in 1825, it occurred to her that a shirt remained clean for a longer period than a collar, so when her husband's shirts were dry she detached the collars from them. Subsequently she started to making detachable collars for sale to her neighbors, and the demand for them reached such a pitch that before 1840 several factories of "string collars" as they were called in their infancy, were established in Troy, which still possesses the largest collar factory in the world.

An Editor's View

The woman who doesn't like this paper because it is no good and never gets anything right should tuck up her underskirt. It hangs down and looks sloppy. The editor of the Economy may not know how to run a newspaper right, but he knows how to put his clothes on so his underwear won't show.—Solon (Ia.) Economy.

Goldfish Farming Is Maryland Industry

Goldfish farming is a little known but important industry in Maryland, near Washington. There, in a beautiful valley that is watered by numerous small creeks, some 35 farmers produce all the goldfish each year in the United States.

There is something in the water, vegetation or climate of their valley that causes goldfish to color better than in any other place in the country, says the Detroit News. Just what this is scientists have not yet determined, but that it exists is evidenced by the growth of the industry there within a quarter of a century, and the ready market which Frederick county goldfish always find.

Goldfish farming involves soil cultivation, just as does the raising of any agricultural crop. Usually the producers fertilize and plow their goldfish ponds in the late fall and sow grass or rye to provide fish pasturage the following season; while some farmers "rest" their ponds every other year by not flooding them, thus allowing the natural grasses and other vegetation of the region to re-establish themselves.

A quarter of a century ago there was not a goldfish in Frederick county, but today there are only one or two other sections of the country where these unique farms are to be found. Ohio said, while Indiana has two or three, in the vicinity of Grassy Forks.

Mexico Now Supplying States With Much Food

Mexico is becoming one of America's greatest sources of staple foods. Coffee, cotton, rice, sugar, tobacco, wheat and "garbanzos" are grown on the west coast, also the tomato, which was introduced into that territory by American colonists fifteen years ago and the output of which is exported almost exclusively to the United States. Railroad officials and planters estimate the exportation of tomatoes to the United Sates at 2,000 carloads for the year. This industry is centralized in two main districts of the state of Sinaloa, the Fuerte River Valley in the north and in several valleys of the south.

Sixty-five cars of cantaloupes crossed the border in the season 1921-22. Grapefruit does well in the Hermosillo and Yaqui valley districts of Sonora, where conditions are much like those of California, and dates and figs are produced on the gulf side of Lower California. Grapes, bananas and alligator pears are grown in quantities. The alligator pear is reported to be the chief article of diet of the common people.

Going Rather Fast

The case before the court in a little town in Wales was one of exceeding the speed limit. The policeman who had brought the charge against the motorist went into the witness box to give evidence.

"You are the constable concerned in this case?" asked the presiding magistrate.

"Yes, sir, indeed," replied the strong arm of the law.

"And can you tell the court at what speed the defendant was traveling?" was the next question from the bench.

The constable scratched his head before replying slowly:

"Well, indeed, sir, I don't know. He was going so fast I did not see him until he was out of sight."—London Answers.

Don't Air Grievances

There is something infinitely pathetic in the uncomplaining fashion in which lower-middle-class French women are now demeaning themselves. Among them there is cherishing of grievances (except that of the closing of the convents); not a touch of that rankling sense of wrong that is so rife among their English sisters; hardly a trace of any effort to draw attention to their distress, and have a remedy for it devised. On the contrary, it almost seems as if their one wish was to hide the fact that they are poor, to keep themselves and their poverty well out of sight.—Edith Sellers in the Atlantic.

"Genius" Now Forgotten

Mouldering in a London cellar lies the life work of a British artist, who in his day was regarded as the equal of Turner. It consists of the Biblical canvases of John Martin, whom the first Lord Lytton pronounced "the most original genius of his age" and Ruskin called one of the four painters who had "the most influence on the ordinary Protestant mind." Martin's pictures were exhibited in Europe and America, were wondered at by the people and engraved to be the ornaments of gift books and the walls of homes of the pious.

More Than Admired

He took her hand in his and gazed proudly at the engagement ring he had placed on her finger only three days before.

"Did your friends admire it?" he inquired, tenderly.

"They did more than that," she replied coldly. "Two of them recognized it."

Then They Moved On

"What do you think of it?" asked the lady.

"She has more cloth in her collar than you have in your skirt."

Then they wandered over to the royal china.

Desert Hero Learned Marriage Was Subduing

Mrs. Rosita Forbes, English traveler, who recently paid a visit in his native haunts to Raisuli, Morocco's bandit chief, who died recently, relates in the New York Times a story concerning the way a desert Romeo was tamed, and how he was made wise in the taming.

The Romeo, a big, strong and handsome tribesman, rode better, shot better and was just about a better man all around than his fellows, when one day the sheriff, Raisuli, thought he would confer a favor upon him in recognition of his prowess. The sheriff asked him what he desired.

"Marry me," implored the Romeo, "marry me."

Raisuli looked about for a suitable wife, and found one, a desert maiden of fine form and face. The wedding took place with a great to-do. But, thereafter, the man changed his ways. He stuck to his tent. He quit displaying his abilities altogether. Idly around his home he sat, and his fellows wondered. Then one day a spirited horse, one of the finest belonging to the tribe, got loose. Men started after it, and the animal passed by Romeo's tent.

The pursuers were expending a lot of effort with no result. Puffing and panting, they came upon the newlywed at his tent.

"What shall we do, what shall we do?" they shouted, as the stallion hoofed it swiftly away.

Ship Has Rooms for Pets From the Tropics

The high mortality in living souvenirs collected annually by American tourists cruising the West Indies has led to many unique methods for their preservation.

Special quarters have been constructed on a steamship for the care of monkeys, parrots and other tropical pets. Rows of small houses, electrically heated to the temperature of the country from which each animal pet hails, are in charge of a marine janitor whose duty is to see that the fixed temperature is maintained and his charges receive their proper tropical fodder.

The owners of the ships decided that a dollar a day for each monkey or parrot house shall be the maximum charge, including heat, janitor service and food.

The question of caring for the souvenirs collected on cruises by Americans is growing in importance. On a world cruise it is not unusual for the 400 passengers to accumulate five or six tons of mementos, including many articles of value from the standpoint of dollars and cents.

Alaskan Fur-Seal Bull Fasts Amidst Plenty

The Alaskan fur-seal bull, although surrounded at all times with ample food and drink, has a period of complete fasting for three months out of each year. This occurs during the breeding season. The bull is kept in a perpetual state of excitement and activity by continual fights to protect his harem of cows from other bulls. At the beginning of the breeding season the bulls are in marvelous condition, weighing as much as four hundred pounds each. Their pelts are thick and firm and they have a tremendous amount of energy. At the end of their period of fasting they are drained of all their stored-up energy; and the fat has disappeared from their flesh and bones.
